eBuddy launches two new betas - come inside to find out how to get access!

Posted by Allen Stern | 04/26/2007
eBuddy has launched two new Beta programs today. Their new Mobile Messenger and Web

Messenger have moved into Beta. I have played around with the Web version a bit and it is pretty sweet. Usually these online chat apps are average or on par with the master app itself, but the new eBuddy seems to be even more robust than using AIM standalone. Appears to work very smoothly and I will have a more detailed review in a couple of days.

All of the details are located on their Beta page and you can go directly to the mobile or Web signups as well. JJ (founder) told me they are only accepting a limited number of testers currently, so get your invite request in quick. I will try to pull his leg to get some additional codes for our loyal CN readers!

Check out our previous eBuddy coverage and my interview with eBuddy founder, Jan-Joost Rueb.
